If you're feeling scared about losing your money in the stock market, it's a completely normal feeling, especially when the market is volatile. I understand your fear because money can feel like security. But it's important to remember, true security doesn't come from the market. It comes from something much deeper, something eternal.

We affirm in our worship service every week that God is the Source of our supply. Now is the time to anchor and prove that belief. Our Unity teachings declare there is a spiritual provision of substance and abundance that provides in ways beyond what we can see or predict or even earn. This moment may feel uncertain, but it's also an invitation to trust, to surrender control, to practice this belief.

I know things feel shaky right now, like the ground is moving beneath you. But I am using the moment to remind myself that my true foundation isn't my bank account, it's my soul, my faith, my connection to the Divine. As a child of God, we are always provided for in ways seen and unseen. This is the moment to take hold of that belief and to enter into the active practice of building a greater realization of God as Source.

Turn inward and trust this storm will pass. This is the moment to dust off the spiritual principles of prosperity and to practice them daily. The same power and presence, the same spiritual force that created your original abundance and well-being, the same presence that brought you through past trials is walking with you now. Stay grounded in love, in faith, in hope—and let this time be a doorway to greater faith in God as Divine Source, provision and supply. Let go of some of any stress by reading this prayer over.

Divine Source of all provision and peace,
My heart feels heavy with worry, fearful of loss, uncertain of the future.

The world feels unstable, and I feel vulnerable.

Remind me God, that my security is not in numbers or markets, but in your Spirit within me—unshakable and eternal.

Help me release my grip on what I cannot control.

I know my vulnerability creates an opening for your love to pour in.

Strengthen my trust in your presence and power.

Let this moment of fear become a doorway to deeper faith.

Remind me to see with spiritual eyes, to know that even in the storm, your presence and power within are my anchor.

Open a flow of provision and supply, not only in material ways, but in peace of mind, clarity of heart, and the courage to endure.

I surrender any fear and let the space it leaves behind open to be filled with calm, with trust, with the quiet knowing that in the very Christ Spirit of my being, my security and well-being are assured.

Amen.

Sharing your Passion = PASS-I-ON

The Question is what does your Passion or PASS-I-ON mean to you?

If you break down the word Passion or PASS-I-ON. I feel it is your personal quest to express your most unique self ~ Chares Filmore: Quoted I fairly sizzle with zeal and enthusiasm and spring with a mighty faith to do that which is mine to do.

Throughout my life and career, my passion has been about being an advocate of change. My career of 60+ years as a hairstylist gave me the gift of developing my own abilities in creating and transforming my guests through the art of hairdressing which outward reflected the guest's inner beauty.

Another Passion for change was my involvement in the political climate of my industry traveling to Washington DC making a presentation to Congress; being instrumental in passing a bill at our State level and helping change the IRS guidelines for the Beauty Industry. Noted: (THE ONLY CONSTANT IS CHANGE) Passion can be as simple as a smile, a helping hand where needed, and sharing unconditional love. Leo Buscaglia always shared we need at least 10 Hugs a day for maintenance. I love to give hugs and get hugs. My PASS-I-ON gives me the opportunity to share my passion by being part of Unity of Auburn and New Board Member. Daily Word was my first introduction to Unity. I have been reading Daily Word for 50 years and shared numerous subscriptions as I journey along Life's Path.

As a new Board Trustee member, I look forward to working together with our Board and congregation to embrace a Positive Change for Unity of Auburn.

I INVITE YOU TO SHARE YOUR PASSION AND WELCOME THE MIRACLES
